

The Huna School: Into the Unseen Realms

July 2012

Dear Graduates,

We are thrilled to bring the first Huna School to you next summer. Huna 101 or Huna 202* can be taken as stand-alone events, or taken together as a single offering.

Each event will begin with an evening session, then continue for 2-1/2 days, ending at noon on the last day (see below for details). If you choose to attend both events, you will have an evening and morning of free time for integration before Huna 202 begins. We will remain at RW Ranch during this special intimate and integrative time. There may also be opportunities to schedule private healings with Mark from the afternoon of August 2 through the morning of August 3.

Because of the intensity of the training, enrollment will be limited, and we anticipate the school will be sold out. So contact Ann for pre-enrollment information.

Mark and I look forward to sharing this amazing event with you.

In continued devotion,

Deborah

Huna School Curriculum

Huna 101:

- Do you feel the winds of the shaman blowing through your hands?
- Have you sensed you were ready to explore the fields of energy known only through your third eye and your ability to journey beyond this perceived reality?
- Have you wanted to study intensively with a master teacher capable of opening your intuition to the unseen realms of existence?
- Do you know your body is capable of transcending the limitations of your mind?

If you answer "yes" to any of these questions, you'll want to attend Huna 101.

Huna 202:

- Do you sense you have the capacity to access past lives, to feel into parallel existences, to retrieve splintered aspects of your own (or another's) psyche?
- Are you a healer capable of transcending the boundaries of ordinary mind to work in the subtle bodies to release thoughtforms, energetic imprints, even earthbound spirits?
- Are you ready to work intensely in a small group with Mark or Deborah or another skillful, well-trained healer to learn through direct experience ancient, powerful Huna healing tools?

If "yes" is your answer, you'll want to attend Huna 202*.

Important Note: *Huna 202 requires completion of Huna 101 or previous work with Mark Saito at Mystery School.

What is Huna? In Hawaiian, the word Huna means “the secret” or “that which is unseen”. It refers to a body of knowledge with its origins in antiquity, possibly 2,000 years old or older. In many ways, it is a mystery school.

Huna is not a religion. The primary mandate in Huna is to live the “hurtless life”. The teachings require that we cause no harm to another, that we respect every sentient being and life form. It was known that when we hurt others, we cause hurt to our self, and we create blocks which disrupt the balance of all existence. Huna teaches that everything is energy, that nothing is separate, and there is a fine balance in this Universe. Therefore, cornerstone Huna teachings center on exploring and experiencing this “energy”, and practicing very specific ways to restore balance and harmony to body, mind, and spirit. Huna connects us to all things, including our ancestors, that which is unseen, our Higher Self, and spirit guides.

The Huna teachings were not openly discussed and never written down, but rather were passed from initiate to initiate for hundreds, possibly thousands of generations. These initiates were called kahuna, meaning the Keepers of the Secret.

The kahuna were teachers and healers. They could change the weather, create rain and even move storms. They could communicate with animals, the fish, trees, plants, and the planet itself. They could tell the people when to plant their crops, when to harvest, which crops and where they should be planted. Like a shaman, the kahuna’s primary purpose however, was to restore harmony – harmony within the bodies, within relationships, within communities, within nature, within humanity and the undivided Universe.

Mark Saito is a Keeper of the Secret, trained in the ancient ways of Huna. He is a healer, a master teacher, a bridge between the seen and unseen. He uniquely blends together the world of the kahuna and his Ninjitsu black belt knowledge of body, mind, spirit connection. For 12 years Mark taught Huna at Mystery School, opening the intuitive center of the third eye. He will amuse, delight, bewilder, and teach you in ways that no other kahuna is allowed.
